

PROTECT YOUR GREATEST ASSETS WITH NEW HEALTH AND SAFETY TOOLS FOR SMALL BUSINESS - AVAILABLE ONLINE

Keeping your people healthy and safe protects your business, improving productivity, and reducing risk of loss and disruption. To help you do this, Workplace Safety & Prevention Services (WSPS) is launching new resources during Small Business Week, October 19-25, all available online at no cost. Just a click away, these resources can help busy people who are short on time become compliant and integrate health and safety into their daily business practices in the easiest way possible.

“Providing fast access to easy to use resources was a top priority,” says John Aird, Manager, Industry & Partner Relations for WSPS. “Time is a luxury. Small business owners and managers are constantly juggling multiple responsibilities, including regulatory compliance and risk management. Since a single injury can have a devastating effect on a small business and the people who work there, knowing how to protect your people can make all the difference.”

These new resources were developed with input from business owners in many different sectors who understand that health and safety is important and good for business. The result: practical information and solutions that recognize the unique requirements of different industries.

1. Getting Started on Safety: A How-to Guide for Your Small Business - a resource guide that offers simple and clear instructions on how to get started with health and safety
2. Getting Started on Safety: A Roadmap for Your Small Business - an industry-specific road map for health and safety requirements
3. Small Business Safety Made Easy - an industry-specific introductory brochure that discusses how health and safety contributes to your business, and introduces WSPS as a source of high quality resources, information and consulting
4. Getting Started on Safety: A Small Business Success Story - a suite of six, industry-specific success stories demonstrating how real businesses developed and improved their health and safety program, and effectively leveraged that success to protect and grow their business.
